said, at first blush when we looked at the contract, we thought there might be contradictory provisions. But the court dug into the contract, interpreted it, and held as a matter of law that there was no agency, no right to control the details of the work there.

So in that same way, there's really no reason that it can't be dealt with as a matter of law. And we don't need to get into discovery, and then all the way through to the motion for summary judgment, only to litigate the issue of whether there's sufficient agency showing to hale Kromtech into court in Washington.

THE COURT: Okay. You're at your five minutes. If you want to wrap up, you may.

MR. BROWN: I am wrapping up. Thank you.

THE COURT: Thank you, Mr. Brown.

Mr. Neta.

MR. NETA: Very brief, Your Honor.

THE COURT: I typically don't do this. Let me explain. I'll give you two minutes. It is not your motion, but it is your burden. So I think, since you're facing six against two, I'll give you two minutes to sum it up.

MR. BABCOCK: Fair fight, Your Honor.

MR. NETA: Thank you. I'll keep it very brief.

The Washington statute that was referenced earlier, I believe it's discretionary, and I don't think it has any impact on federal courts. While it might be true that the Supreme 2

1
     Court has tightened up general jurisdiction, I don't believe 3
     that's the case with specific. And it's certainly not the case 4
     of Internet actions.
 5
                A lot has been discussed about the Walden case, but I 6
     just want to quickly bring your attention --
 7
                THE COURT: And you're proceeding only under specific 8
     jurisdiction --
 9
                MR. NETA:
                          That's correct, Your Honor.
10
                THE COURT: -- for all of the defendants, is my 11
     impression, after reading all the briefing.
12
                MR. NETA:
                           Precisely. If you look at Footnote 9 of the Walden case, it says specifically:
13
                 .. this case does not present the very 14
                different question whether and how defendant's virtual "presence" and conduct translate into "contacts" with a particular 15
16
                State. ... We leave questions about virtual contacts for another day.
17
18
                So while that case did have something to say about 19
     constraining specific jurisdiction, it doesn't have any impact 20
     on this case, because that's not what this case is about. It's 21
     about Internet damage, Internet advertising commerce.
22
                Quickly, on the issue of agency, I think there's 23
     enough evidence in the case so far to indicate that Kromtech had 24
     some agency control over Mr. Vickery. And as I said earlier, 25
     CXO doesn't really dispute the notion that they had agency
```

```
1
     control over Mr. Ragan. There is a question about CXO and IDG
 2
     and to the extent to which they're interrelated, but all I would 3
     say in response to that, Your Honor, is if you feel that 4
     question needs to be more appropriately addressed in the 5
     pleadings, we're happy to take jurisdictional discovery on 6
     certain questions so that we can resolve that issue.
 7
               THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.
 8
               MR. NETA: Thank you, Your Honor.
 9
               THE COURT: All right. I'll try to get a decision out 10
     as soon as I can. I do have a week-long trial that begins on 11
     Monday, so that will probably get in the way of this a little bit, but we'll work on it, get it out as soon as we can.
12
13
     will be a couple weeks.
14
               But I've enjoyed our time this afternoon. And thank 15
     you for being prepared, organized, and efficient.
16
               MR. NETA: Thank you.
17
               MR. BABCOCK: Thank you, Your Honor, 18
